WHAT HAPPENS IF YOU DON'T MATCH HAIR EXTENSIONS TEXTURE WITH YOUR CLIENT'S NATURAL HAIR?

You can see the straighter hair on the top left and the curly peeking out underneath on the right side. The textures are so different and dry differently. This becomes a problem when cutting the extensions. If you have smoothed and cut the extensions straight it will appear that it blends perfectly.

Knowing your hair texture, porosity, and curl pattern are key to healthy hair. Products that may work for a certain curly hair type might be damaging to others, and knowing your hair type can determine how much you should be using shampoo or even how heat products need to be incorporated.

Our Gallery

 This gallery section contains two images. The first image, labeled 'Standard tapes', shows a close-up of hair with a metal clip and a piece of tape being applied. The second image, labeled 'Standard keratin bonds', shows a hand holding a bundle of long, straight, light-colored hair strands. Navigation arrows are visible at the bottom of the gallery.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN HAIR TEXTURE AND HAIR TYPE?

In simple terms, the difference between hair texture and hair type is this: Hair texture specifically refers to individual hair strands, whereas hair type generally refers to the head of hair as a whole.
